Update: Our Partnership with Saint-Gobain

Today, we at The Bailey Group of Companies (Bailey Metal Products, Bailey Metal Processing, and Agway Metals) begin the next chapter in our story, as we close our acquisition with Saint-Gobain North America. As leaders in light and sustainable construction, with a Purpose of Making the World a Better Home, we can think of no better partner to continue our work to provide Canadian-made metal framing and building solutions to our customers.

By partnering with Saint-Gobain North America, Bailey will continue to play a leading role in the Canadian construction industry. Alongside other Saint-Gobain Canada businesses CertainTeed Canada, Kaycan, and Building Products of Canada, we will bring a full portfolio of building solutions, both interior and exterior to our customers from the Maritimes to British Columbia.

From its founding by Sam Bailey in 1950 to today, Bailey has been dedicated to quality service, exceeding customer expectations and operating with integrity. That will continue over the coming days, weeks and years. Even with the acquisition complete, the day-to-day experience won't change for our employees or customers, and we will still operate in the market as Bailey. We can assure you that our drive to provide quality, sustainable products and excellent customer service will continue. We look forward contributing and being a part of the Saint-Gobain team and working together to create the future of the building materials industry in Canada.

Sincerely,

Angelo Sarracini
